Case No.: 3:17-cv-84

COMMISSIONER OF
SOCIAL SECURITY,

District Judge Walter H. Rice
Magistrate Judge Michael J. Newman

Defendant.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION<sup>1</sup> THAT: (1) THE ALJ'S NON-DISABILITY FINDING BE FOUND UNSUPPORTED BY SUBSTANTIAL EVIDENCE, AND REVERSED; (2) THIS MATTER BE REMANDED TO THE COMMISSIONER UNDER THE FOURTH SENTENCE OF 42 U.S.C. § 405(g) FOR PROCEEDINGS CONSISTENT WITH THIS OPINION; AND (3) THIS CASE BE CLOSED

This is a Social Security disability benefits appeal. At issue is whether the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") erred in finding Plaintiff not "disabled" and therefore unentitled to Disability Insurance Benefits ("DIB") and/or Supplemental Security Income ("SSI").<sup>2</sup> This case is before the Court upon Plaintiff's Statement of Errors (doc. 9), the Commissioner's memorandum in opposition (doc. 11), Plaintiff's reply memorandum (doc. 12), the administrative record (doc. 7),<sup>3</sup> and the record as a whole.

<sup>3</sup> Hereafter, citations to the electronically-filed administrative record will refer only to the PageID number.

I.

A. Procedural History

Plaintiff filed for DIB and SSI alleging a disability onset date of April 1, 2013. PageID 278. Plaintiff claims disability as a result of a number of impairments including, inter alia, alcoholic hepatitis, hepatitis C, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (“COPD”), and depression. PageID 68.

After initial denial of her applications, Plaintiff received a hearing before ALJ Gregory G. Kenyon on December 18, 2015. PageID 212. On February 25, 2016 ALJ Kenyon issued a written decision finding Plaintiff not disabled. PageID 66-75. Specifically, ALJ Kenyon found at Step 5 that, based upon Plaintiff’s residual functional capacity (“RFC”) to perform a limited range of light work,<sup>4</sup> “there are jobs that exist in significant numbers in the national economy that [Plaintiff] can perform[.]” PageID 70.

Thereafter, the Appeals Council denied Plaintiff’s request for review, making the ALJ’s non-disability finding the final administrative decision of the Commissioner. PageID 52. See Casey v. Sec’y of Health & Human Servs., 987 F.2d 1230, 1233 (6th Cir. 1993). Plaintiff then filed this timely appeal. Cook v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., 480 F.3d 432, 435 (6th Cir. 2007).

B. Evidence of Record

The evidence of record is adequately summarized in the ALJ’s decision (PageID 66-75), Plaintiff’s Statement of Errors (doc. 9), the Commissioner’s memorandum in opposition (doc.

<sup>4</sup> The Social Security Administration (“SSA”) classifies jobs as sedentary, light, medium, heavy, and very heavy depending on the physical exertion requirements. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1567. Light work “involves lifting no more than 20 pounds at a time with frequent lifting or carrying of objects weighing up to 10 pounds” and “requires a good deal of walking or standing, or . . . sitting most of the time with some pushing and pulling of arm or leg controls.” Id. § 404.1567(b). An individual who can perform light work is presumed to also be able to perform sedentary work. Id. Sedentary work “involves lifting no more than 10 pounds at a time and occasionally lifting or carrying articles like docket files, ledgers, and small tools. Although a sedentary job is defined as one which involves sitting, a certain amount of walking and standing is often necessary in carrying out job duties.” Id. § 404.1567(a).

11), and Plaintiff's reply (doc. 12). The undersigned incorporates all of the foregoing and sets forth the facts relevant to this appeal herein.

II.

A. Standard of Review

The Court's inquiry on a Social Security appeal is to determine (1) whether the ALJ's non-disability finding is supported by substantial evidence, and (2) whether the ALJ employed the correct legal criteria. 42 U.S.C. § 405(g); Bowen v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec., 478 F.3d 742, 745-46 (6th Cir. 2007). In performing this review, the Court must consider the record as a whole. Hephner v. Mathews, 574 F.2d 359, 362 (6th Cir. 1978).

Substantial evidence is "such relevant evidence as a reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion." Richardson v. Perales, 402 U.S. 389, 401 (1971). When substantial evidence supports the ALJ's denial of benefits, that finding must be affirmed, even if substantial evidence also exists in the record upon which the ALJ could have found Plaintiff disabled. Buxton v. Halter, 246 F.3d 762, 772 (6th Cir. 2001). Thus, the ALJ has a "'zone of choice' within which he [or she] can act without the fear of court interference." Id. at 773.

The second judicial inquiry -- reviewing the correctness of the ALJ's legal analysis -- may result in reversal even if the ALJ's decision is supported by substantial evidence in the record. Rabbers v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec., 582 F.3d 647, 651 (6th Cir. 2009). "[A] decision of the Commissioner will not be upheld where the [Social Security Administration] fails to follow its own regulations and where that error prejudices a claimant on the merits or deprives the claimant of a substantial right." Bowen, 478 F.3d at 746.

B. "Disability" Defined

To be eligible for disability benefits, a claimant must be under a "disability" as defined by the Social Security Act. 42 U.S.C. § 423(d)(1)(A). Narrowed to its statutory meaning, a "disability" includes physical and/or mental impairments that are both "medically determinable" and severe enough to prevent a claimant from (1) performing his or her past job and (2) engaging in “substantial gainful activity” that is available in the regional or national economies. Id.

Administrative regulations require a five-step sequential evaluation for disability determinations. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1520(a)(4). Although a dispositive finding at any step ends the ALJ’s review, see Colvin, 475 F.3d at 730, the complete sequential review poses five questions:

1. Has the claimant engaged in substantial gainful activity?;
2. Does the claimant suffer from one or more severe impairments?;
3. Do the claimant’s severe impairments, alone or in combination, meet or equal the criteria of an impairment set forth in the Commissioner’s Listing of Impairments (the “Listings”), 20 C.F.R. Subpart P, Appendix 1?;
4. Considering the claimant’s RFC, can he or she perform his or her past relevant work?; and
5. Assuming the claimant can no longer perform his or her past relevant work -- and also considering the claimant’s age, education, past work experience, and RFC -- do significant numbers of other jobs exist in the national economy which the claimant can perform?

20 C.F.R. § 404.1520(a)(4); see also Miller v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., 181 F.Supp.2d 816, 818 (S.D. Ohio 2001). A claimant bears the ultimate burden of establishing disability under the Social Security Act. Key v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., 109 F.3d 270, 274 (6th Cir. 1997).

III.

In her Statement of Errors, Plaintiff argues that the ALJ erred by: (1) improperly weighing the medical source opinions; (2) failing to properly evaluate her impairments under the Listings; and (3) improperly assessing her credibility. Doc. 9 at PageID 1959-66. The Court finds reversible error in the ALJ’s analysis of the medical source opinions and, therefore, need not reach the merits of Plaintiff’s other assignments of error.

Until March 27, 2017, “the Commissioner’s regulations [that apply to this appeal] establish[ed] a hierarchy of acceptable medical source opinions[.]” Snell v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., No. 3:12-cv-119, 2013 WL 372032, at *9 (S.D. Ohio Jan. 30, 2013). In descending order, these medical source opinions are: (1) treaters; (2) examiners; and (3) record reviewers. Id. Under the regulations then in effect, which control here, the opinions of treaters are entitled to the greatest deference because they “are likely to be . . . most able to provide a detailed, longitudinal picture of [a claimant’s] medical impairment(s) and may bring a unique perspective to the medical evidence that cannot be obtained from the objective medical findings alone or from reports of individual examinations[.]” 20 C.F.R. § 404.1527(c)(2).

A treater’s opinion must be given “controlling weight” if “well-supported by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques and . . . not inconsistent with the other substantial evidence in [the] case record.” LaRiccia v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., 549 F. App’x 377, 384 (6th Cir. 2013). Even if a treater’s opinion is not entitled to controlling weight, “the ALJ must still determine how much weight is appropriate by considering a number of factors, including the length of the treatment relationship and the frequency of examination, the nature and extent of the treatment relationship, supportability of the opinion, consistency of the opinion with the record as a whole, and any specialization of the treating physician.” Blakley v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., 581 F.3d 399, 406 (6th Cir. 2009); see also 20 C.F.R. § 404.1527(c).<sup>5</sup>

After treaters, “[n]ext in the hierarchy are examining physicians and psychologists, who often see and examine claimants only once.” Snell, 2013 WL 372032, at *9. Record reviewers are afforded the least deference and these “non-examining physicians’ opinions are on the lowest rung of the hierarchy of medical source opinions.” Id. Put simply, “[t]he regulations provide progressively more rigorous tests for weighing opinions as the ties between the source of the opinion and the individual [claimant] become weaker.” Id. (citing SSR 96-6p, 1996 WL 374180, at *2 (July 2, 1996)). In the absence of a controlling treating source opinion, an ALJ must “evaluate all medical opinions” with regard to the factors set forth in 20 C.F.R. § 404.1527(c), i.e., length of treatment history; consistency of the opinion with other evidence; supportability; and specialty or expertise in the medical field related to the individual’s impairment(s). Walton v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., No. 97-2030, 1999 WL 506979, at *2 (6th Cir. June 7, 1999).

<sup>5</sup> In essence, “opinions of a treating source . . . must be analyzed under a two-step process, with care being taken not to conflate the steps.” Cadle v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., No. 5:12-cv-3071, 2013 WL 5173127, at *5 (N.D. Ohio Sept. 12, 2013). Initially, “the opinion must be examined to determine if it is entitled to controlling weight” and “[o]nly if . . . the ALJ does not give controlling weight to the treating physician’s opinion is the opinion subjected to another analysis based on the particulars of” 20 C.F.R. § 404.1527. Id.

Here, there are no treating physicians. As a result, each of the medical source opinions is to be analyzed under 20 C.F.R. § 404.1527(c). Record-reviewers Ermias Seleshi, M.D. and Cindy Matyi, Ph.D., provided written opinions on Plaintiff’s mental health limitations. PageID 121-35, 153-67. The ALJ assigned both opinions “great weight” stating only that “they are consistent with the objective record as a whole.” PageID 73.

Record-reviewers Esberdado Villlanueva, M.D. and Michael Delphia, M.D. provided written report on Plaintiff’s physical limitations. PageID 136-50, 153-67. The ALJ assigned both opinions “moderate weight” stating “the records [do] support further exertional limitations to light work, as well as non-exertional limitations.” PageID 73.

Consulting psychologist Giovanni Bonds, Ph.D. also provided a written report regarding Plaintiff’s mental health limitations. PageID 959-68. The ALJ assigned Dr. Bonds’ opinion “great weight,” stating only that it “is consistent with the record as a whole.”

Consulting physician, Morris Brown, M.D., completed a medical source statement regarding Plaintiff’s limitations.<sup>6</sup> PageID 1882-85. The ALJ gave “little weight” to Dr. Brown’s opinion stating only that “there is no basis to conclude that the [Plaintiff] cannot perform sedentary work and final determinations of disability are reserved for the [Commissioner].”

<sup>6</sup> The Court notes that, although Plaintiff refers to Dr. Brown as a treating physician, the Court finds he is not. PageID 1962. Dr. Brown saw Plaintiff only one time which fails to establish an ongoing treatment relationship. Thus, Dr. Brown is, at best, a consulting physician. Smith v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., 482 F.3d 873, 876 (6th Cir. Apr. 9, 2007) (finding that doctors who had examined the claimant on a single occasion or treated claimant on a very limited basis did not constitute the type of ongoing treatment relationship contemplated by the “treating physician rule”).

The undersigned finds error in the ALJ’s assessment of each medical source opinion. The ALJ’s analysis is conclusory and lacking in meaningful explanation. PageID 73. With regard to Drs. Seleshi, Matyi and Bonds, despite finding the opinions consistent with the record as a whole, the ALJ provides no insight with regard to such evidence. Id. Simply restating a medical source’s opinion -- and offering a conclusory assessment of the weight given, without further discussion -- fails to satisfy the requirement that the ALJ provide meaningful explanation of the weight given to all medical opinion evidence of record. See 20 C.F.R. § 404.927(c); see also Aytch v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., No. 3:13-cv-135, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 115119, *1, at *5-6 (S.D. Ohio Aug. 19, 2014) (finding the ALJ’s explanation “lacking” where the ALJ merely “recapitulated” the reasons stated by the medical expert for disagreeing with the opinion of a treating physician and failed to “provide his reasons for according [the] opinion the ... weight he did”).

Based upon all of the foregoing, the Court concludes that the non-disability finding must be reversed as a result of the ALJ’s failure to meaningfully analyze the medical source opinions regarding Plaintiff’s physical and mental health limitations.

IV.

When, as here, the ALJ’s non-disability determination is unsupported by substantial evidence, the Court must determine whether to reverse and remand the matter for rehearing, or to reverse and order an award of benefits. The Court has authority to affirm, modify or reverse the Commissioner’s decision “with or without remanding the cause for rehearing.” 42 U.S.C. § 405(g); Melkonyan v. Sullivan, 501 U.S. 89, 100 (1991). Generally, benefits may be awarded immediately “only if all essential factual issues have been resolved and the record adequately establishes a plaintiff’s entitlement to benefits.” Faucher v. Sec’y of Health & Human Servs., 17

F.3d 171, 176 (6th Cir. 1994); see also Abbott v. Sullivan, 905 F.2d 918, 927 (6th Cir. 1990); Varley v. Sec'y of Health & Human Servs., 820 F.2d 777, 782 (6th Cir. 1987). Here, the undersigned finds that evidence of disability is not overwhelming, despite two administrative hearings being held below. Remand for further proceedings is thus proper. On remand, the ALJ should hold another administrative hearing and review all medical opinion evidence under the § 404.1527(c) factors.

V.

IT IS THEREFORE RECOMMENDED THAT:

1. The Commissioner's non-disability finding be found unsupported by substantial evidence, and REVERSED;
2. This matter be REMANDED to the Commissioner under the Fourth Sentence of 42 U.S.C. § 405(g) for proceedings consistent with this opinion; and
3. This case be CLOSED.
